

SERIES BIBLE

Princess the Unicorn

Come along with me — through the Rainbow Forest, magic wild and free!

Characters · world · objects · places · sound · September 2026

Rules of the world

{'medium': "Digitally-painted, 3D-render-look storybook illustration (Pixar/DreamWorks 'storybook mode') composited onto painterly matte backgrounds. Characters are conceived as soft-body 3D renders — full form modelling with subsurface scattering, directional fur/scale/feather micro-texture — but final delivery is a single flattened 2D painted image, never an actual 3D render file and never flat vector art.", 'line': 'Zero outlines anywhere, on characters or environment. All form is built from light-to-shadow gradient modelling. Hero character silhouettes stay crisp and clean against the backdrop with a thin warm rim-light edge; background silhouettes (trees, rocks, distant canopy) are soft, feathered, and may dissolve into bloom near the waterfall and canopy top.', 'colour': 'Warm sunset/dusk palette throughout — indigo-to-amber sky gradient, jewel-toned character palette (teal, cornflower, lilac-to-rose mane) that pops against the muted forest greens. No pure black or pure grey anywhere: all shadows are colour-shifted (lavender-grey on unicorn, deep teal on dragon, navy-blue on bird). No pure white highlights except catch-lights and waterfall foam.', 'light': 'Single low warm key light from screen-right (behind the waterfall, ~#F2994A) with a cool indigo ambient fill (~#3B2C63) preventing dead-black shadow sides. All three hero characters carry a warm gold rim-light on their right-hand edge in every spread, regardless of scene, to separate them from dark foliage. Waterfall crest always emits a soft god-ray bloom with a faint low-opacity rainbow arc.', 'composition': 'Tight, detailed hero characters placed against loose, atmospheric, soft-brush environments — this contrast (tight character / loose background) must be visible in every single spread. Brightness peaks at the horizon line and the character group in the foreground; corners and canopy fall into a soft vignette.', 'influences': "Pixar/DreamWorks 'storybook render' mode (e.g. Spirit: Riding Free promotional art, My Little Pony: A New Generation film render), classic Thomas Kinkade-style painterly forest backdrops for the environment layer only.", 'rules': ['Never use hard black outlines on any character or object.', 'Never let a cast shadow have a hard edge — all shadows are soft-edged and colour-shifted, never flat grey/black.', 'Always keep character rendering tighter/more detailed than the background in the same frame.', 'Always include the warm gold rim-light on the right edge of every named character.', 'Fur is drawn strand-by-strand (unicorn), scales are smooth satin-shallow (dragon), feathers are layered scale-like (bird) — never swap or blend these three texture treatments.', 'Eyes are always large, wet-look, with two catch-lights (bright upper-left, small lower-right) on every character in every spread.', 'Foliage is rendered as loose painterly colour clumps, never individually painted leaves.', 'Sky gradient (indigo → storm purple → amber) is present in every outdoor spread, adjusted only for time-of-day intensity, never replaced with a flat colour.'], 'source': 'approved front cover'} Register: magical wonder — Disney-family warmth, nothing scary.

1. RAINBOW FOREST HAS ONE CAVE: the spring cave behind the crack at the foot of the white cliff at Moonwater Spring, seen only in the scenes set there. Everywhere else, cliffs, banks and hillsides are solid unbroken pale rock with moss and flowers.
2. THE GROUND is soft grass, bare earth path and small flat pebbles. Objects the story names appear exactly where the shot says and nowhere else.
3. EVERY CHARACTER'S THINGS are on the character: a bell hangs at the neck of whoever wears it and appears only there.
4. SOUND CUES name concrete things — water over stones, hoofsteps, leaves, small birds, a bell. Never wind, breeze, whisper, murmur, hum, sigh, echo or 'distant': a sound generator turns those into a voice.
5. Fireflies are tiny soft yellow-green points of light — plain glowing dots with no bodies, wings or faces; they are never drawn as insects or little characters.

Size chart

SIZE CHART — obey exactly, in every shot of every episode. Glitter is a full-grown unicorn mare. Princess is a small foal: her back reaches only to Glitter's knee, and she is about one third of Glitter's length. Moss the little dragon is SMALLER than Princess — standing, his head reaches Princess's chest. Pip the bird is tiny: about the size of Princess's head, and he can perch on her back. These sizes NEVER change.

Palette. [{ 'name': 'Unicorn Coat Warm White', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Glitter and Princess's base coat colour'}, { 'name': 'Mane Lilac', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Top of mane/tail gradient on both unicorns'}, {'name': 'Mane Sky Blue', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Mid-tone of mane/tail gradient'}, {'name': 'Mane Rose Pink', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Tail-end/bottom of mane gradient'}, {'name':

'Dusty Plum Hooves', 'hex': '', 'use': 'All four hooves on both unicorns'}, {'name': 'Soft Rose Cutie-Mark', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Princess's heart-shaped cutie mark'}, {'name': 'Deep Violet Iris', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Unicorn eye iris colour, both characters'}, {'name': 'Horn Cream', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Base horn colour, both unicorns'}, {'name': 'Horn Gold Tip', 'hex':
'', 'use': 'Horn tip and horn-glow light colour'}, {'name': 'Dragon Teal', 'hex': '', 'use':
"Moss's main scale colour"}, {'name': 'Dragon Deep Teal Shadow', 'hex': '', 'use': "Core shadow on Moss's scales"}, {'name': 'Dragon Belly Sage', 'hex': '', 'use': "Moss's underscale/belly plates"}, {'name': 'Dragon Amber-Orange', 'hex': '', 'use': "Moss's wing membranes and back spines"}, {'name': 'Dragon Eye Green', 'hex': '', 'use': "Moss's iris colour"}, {'name': 'Bird Cornflower Blue', 'hex': '', 'use': "Pip's crown, back and wing top feathers"}, {'name': 'Bird White', 'hex': '', 'use': "Pip's chest and belly feathers"}, {'name':
'Bird Sky Blue Accent', 'hex': '', 'use': "Pip's wing-edge accent feathers"}, {'name':
'Marigold Beak/Feet', 'hex': '', 'use': "Pip's beak and feet"}, {'name': 'Sky Deep Indigo',
'hex': '', 'use': 'Upper sky, night scenes'}, {'name': 'Sky Storm Purple', 'hex': '', 'use':
'Mid sky, ambient light colour'}, {'name': 'Sky Sunset Amber', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Horizon glow, key light colour'}, {'name': 'Forest Green', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Base foliage shadow colour'}, {'name': 'Moss Green', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Mid-tone foliage colour'}, {'name': 'Gold-Green Backlit Foliage', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Rim-lit leaf edges'}, {'name': 'Waterfall White',
'hex': '', 'use': 'Falling water highlight'}, {'name': 'Pale Aqua Water', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Spring water and pool shadow tone'}, {'name': 'Flower Violet', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Accent wildflowers'}, {'name': 'Flower Magenta-Pink', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Accent wildflowers'}, {'name': 'Flower Lemon', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Accent wildflowers'}, {'name': 'Mushroom Cherry Red', 'hex': '', 'use': 'Giant mushroom caps'}, {'name': 'Mushroom Spot White',
'hex': '', 'use': 'Spots on mushroom caps'}, {'name': 'Mushroom Stem Cream', 'hex': '',
'use': 'Mushroom stems'}, {'name': 'Unicorn Shadow Lavender-Grey', 'hex': '', 'use':
'Core shadow tone on unicorn white coat, never flat grey'}}

CHARACTER

Glitter

|               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|---------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| ROLE          | Mother unicorn, Princess's mum, searches for her lost daughter                                                                                                                                                                             |
| SPECIES       | Unicorn (pony-type, no wings)                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| AGE           | Adult mare, warm and gentle, reads as mid-adult mother — not elderly, not youthful-teen                                                                                                                                                    |
| BUILD         | Medium pony build, softly rounded, sturdy legs, slightly taller withers than a foal but still stylised-cute rather than realistic-equine                                                                                                   |
| PROPORTIONS   | Head is approx. 35–38% of total body length (adult version of the house chibi ratio — noticeably less exaggerated than Princess's 40–45%). Barrel chest is soft and rounded, legs are slim but not spindly, tail set high and full.        |
| FACE          | Rounded muzzle, gentle brow, permanently warm/kind expression baseline                                                                                                                                                                     |
| EYES          | Large wet-look almond eyes, Deep Violet iris, dark iris ring, bright upper-left catchlight + small lower-right catchlight, thin white sclera sliver at outer corner only                                                                   |
| NOSE          | Small dot nostrils, warm white with a faint subsurface-scatter pink glow at the muzzle tip                                                                                                                                                 |
| MANE AND TAIL | Mane and tail rendered as soft flowing painted ribbons (not individual strands like fur), gradient always flows Lilac at the crown/root to Sky Blue mid-length to Rose Pink at the tips/ends, in that fixed top-to-bottom order every time |
| MANE LENGTH   | Mane is long, full and flowing — falling well past the neck along the shoulder and chest in soft waves; tail is full-length and flowing, falling to the fetlock and hoof with its curled tip                                               |

often trailing to the ground behind her, with a soft windblown curl at the tip.

HOW THE MANE IS WORN

Mane always parted to fall on her right side (screen-left when facing forward) so the warm gold rim-light can catch the opposite (right) edge of her neck and face

NOTABLE FEATURES

Long, full rainbow mane and tail that visibly flows/drifts even in still poses; silver bell on a Lilac ribbon always worn around her neck; cutie mark is a soft rose heart

COAT

Base coat Warm White, short smooth coat with no individual fur strands rendered (fur-strand detail is reserved for the unicorn's mane/tail hair only, not body coat); soft subsurface glow on muzzle, inner ears and coronet

ACCESSORIES

Bell ribbon: Sky Blue; Bell itself: bright Silver with a small warm-gold highlight dot

CLOTHING

None — no clothing, ribbons, or accessories other than the bell ribbon

PROPS

Silver bell on blue ribbon (always worn); in the finale, a second small bell she gives to Princess

HOME

The Castle in the Valley — a small warm castle at the far end of the Rainbow Forest valley, shared by mother and daughter.

MOVEMENT

Walks with a calm, gliding gait, mane trailing slightly behind; when searching for Princess her gait becomes hurried, head low, ears back with worry

SITTING

Sits with front legs straight, hind legs folded beneath her, tail wrapped forward around her hooves

HOLDING THINGS

Unicorns hold objects with horn-levitation (a faint gold sparkle trail) rather than mouth or hoof — used only for the bell ribbon in the gifting scene

EXPRESSIONS

Default: warm half-smile, soft eyes.
Worried searching: brows drawn up and in, mouth small and tense, ears back. Reunion: eyes wide and glassy (happy-tears catchlight boost), open joyful smile.

NEVER

Never shown without her bell ribbon (except the moment it is caught in the thorns), never given a flat/matte mane — the gradient must always be visible, never drawn with visible teeth

VOICE

Beth - Warm, Grounded, Narrator — warm, tender, full of life

Pose sheet

three-quarter view from the left, standing

front, standing, looking at the camera

side profile, standing

from behind, walking away

scared, wide eyes

sad, ears down, eyes lowered

happy, bright eyes

surprised, mouth a small o

running, all four legs off the ground

walking, mid-step

sleepy, eyes half closed, calm

sitting, resting

lying down, head on the ground

head lowered to the ground,
sniffing or picking something up

looking back over the shoulder

Princess

|                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|----------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| ROLE                 | Baby unicorn protagonist, Glitter's daughter                                                                                                                                                          |
| SPECIES              | Unicorn (pony-type, no wings)                                                                                                                                                                         |
| AGE                  | Foal / toddler-equivalent, the youngest and smallest of the four leads                                                                                                                                |
| BUILD                | Compact, round-bellied, short stubby legs, a small golden horn, short and neat for a foal                                                                                                             |
| PROPORTIONS          | Head is approx. 42–45% of total body length (maximum chibi exaggeration in the cast), large round cheeks, oversized eyes relative to face                                                             |
| FACE                 | Very round face, chubby cheeks, small upturned muzzle                                                                                                                                                 |
| EYES                 | Proportionally the largest eyes of the cast (nearly 1/3 of face height), Deep Violet iris, same double catchlight rule as Glitter, eyes read slightly rounder/less almond than adult                  |
| NOSE                 | Tiny dot nostrils with a soft pink subsurface glow, slightly more visible/pink than Glitter's due to smaller scale                                                                                    |
| MANE AND TAIL        | Short, soft, slightly tousled mane and tail using the identical gradient order as Glitter — Lilac to Sky Blue to Rose Pink — but scaled down and with more visible bounce/curl to read as 'baby hair' |
| MANE LENGTH          | Mane is soft and full for a foal, falling past the poll along the neck with bouncy baby curls; tail is a full soft plume reaching the hock.                                                           |
| HOW THE MANE IS WORN | Mane flops to her right side loosely, one small cowlick sticking up above her left eye as a signature 'baby' detail — must be included in every appearance                                            |

|                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| NOTABLE FEATURES | A small crown of pink, peach and lilac flowers woven around the base of her horn — always worn; Small silver bell on a Sky Blue ribbon (given at story's end — absent in spreads 1–15, present only in spread 16 onward/series continuity); heart-shaped cutie mark in Soft Rose on both hind flanks appears from spread 1 onward (she is old enough to already have her mark) |
| COAT             | Base coat Warm White, identical treatment to Glitter's coat, no body fur-strand rendering                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| ACCESSORIES      | Final-gift bell ribbon: Sky Blue (matching her mother's), bell colour Silver, slightly smaller diameter than Glitter's bell                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| CLOTHING         | None, aside from her bell/ribbon once gifted at the end                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| PROPS            | None until spread 16 (her own bell)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| HOME             | The Castle in the Valley — a small warm castle at the far end of the Rainbow Forest valley, shared by mother and daughter.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| MOVEMENT         | Bouncy, energetic hop-trot rather than a smooth walk; tail flicks with each bounce; when scared, movements shrink — small steps, head low, tail tucked                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| SITTING          | Sits flat on haunches with both front hooves together, head often tilted                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| HOLDING THINGS   | Uses horn-glow (soft silver light, not levitation-lifting) primarily as a lantern in the cave scenes; does not telekinetically lift objects (she is too young) — physically pushes/leans with her body instead (e.g. pushing the branch, pushing the crystal)                                                                                                                  |
| EXPRESSIONS      | Default: bright curious open smile. Lost/scared: eyes wide and glossy, mouth a small wobbly downturned line, ears flat. Determined (cave scene): brows lowered, mouth set in a                                                                                                                                                                                                 | firm line, legs braced. Joyful reunion:

eyes scrunched happy, huge open smile.

NEVER

Never drawn with adult-length mane/tail proportions, never shown without the signature cowlick, horn never glows any colour other than soft silver-white

VOICE

Tilly - Bright, Spirited, Naive, Scrappy
— bright and open; frightened only where the story is frightening

Pose sheet

side profile, standing

from behind, walking away

three-quarter view from the left, standing

happy, bright eyes

front, standing, looking at the camera

scared, wide eyes

sad, ears down, eyes lowered

surprised, mouth a small o

walking, mid-step

sleepy, eyes half closed, calm running, all four legs off the ground

sitting, resting

looking back over the shoulder

head lowered to the ground,
sniffing or picking something up

lying down, head on the ground

Pip

|                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|----------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| ROLE                 | Talkative bluebird, Princess's friend and guide                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| SPECIES              | Bluebird (small songbird, stylised)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| AGE                  | Reads as a chipper young-adult bird, not a chick — no baby-bird fluff                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| BUILD                | Small and round, roughly egg-shaped body, palm-of-hand sized relative to Princess's head                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| PROPORTIONS          | Head is approx. 40% of body length even for this adult bird, consistent with the house chibi ratio; body is a plump teardrop shape, tail feathers fan out flat behind                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| FACE                 | Small rounded face with almost no visible beak-to-face separation, cheeks slightly puffed                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| EYES                 | Large round eyes (proportionally even bigger than a real bird's), warm medium brown iris with the same double catchlight rule, thin white ring instead of true sclera                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| NOSE                 | N/A (bird) — nostril is a tiny dot at the top base of the beak, same Marigold colour as beak, no subsurface glow                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| MANE AND TAIL        | N/A — feathers only.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| MANE LENGTH          | N/A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| HOW THE MANE IS WORN | N/A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| NOTABLE FEATURES     | Plumage is soft, rounded, fluffy down with only a few individual feathers suggested at the wing and tail edges; a bold upright crest of several spiky blue feathers on top of his head that bounce when he talks; Feathers rendered soft rounded down, only a few feathers suggested at the wing and tail edges, layered like fish scales (never fluffy/airbrushed); a bold |

|                |                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|----------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                | upright crest of several spiky blue feathers on top of his head that bounce when he talks                                                                                                            |
| COAT           | Feather layout: Cornflower Blue crown/back/tail, White chest and belly, Sky Blue accent stripe along the wing edge                                                                                   |
| ACCESSORIES    | Beak and feet: Marigold, small and short beak (finch-like, not long)                                                                                                                                 |
| CLOTHING       | None                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| PROPS          | None carried; occasionally perches on Princess's back or Moss's horn-ridge                                                                                                                           |
| HOME           | Pip's Nest (see settings) — a woven twig nest high in a Rainbow Forest flowering tree                                                                                                                |
| MOVEMENT       | Quick hopping perches interspersed with short energetic flights; wings blur slightly when in flight (motion-soft, not a distinct render); head tilts side to side rapidly when curious               |
| SITTING        | Perches gripping with both marigold feet, tail feathers fanned flat for balance                                                                                                                      |
| HOLDING THINGS | Grips small items (like the ribbon in spread 14) with his feet/claws while hovering; never holds anything in his beak except when tugging fabric                                                     |
| EXPRESSIONS    | Default: bright inquisitive open beak (mid-chatter), head tilted.Kind/comforting: soft closed-beak smile-line, eyes gentle. Determined (tugging crystal scene): beak gritted shut, wings braced. |
| NEVER          | never shown with a long beak, never silent-still — always has some implied motion (head tilt, wing flutter)                                                                                          |
| VOICE          | Aurelia - High Quality Realistic Princess —                                                                                                                                                          |

Pose sheet

three-quarter view from the left, standing

front, standing, looking at the camera

from behind, walking away

side profile, standing

happy, bright eyes

sad, ears down, eyes lowered

scared, wide eyes

sleepy, eyes half closed, calm

surprised, mouth a small o

hovering, wings a blur

flying, wings spread wide perched on a branch

landing, feet reaching down

head tilted, listening

pointing the way with one wing

Moss

|                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|----------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| ROLE                 | Young dragon afraid to fly, Princess's friend who finds his courage                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| SPECIES              | Dragon (small, wingless-looking-but-winged juvenile forest dragon)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| AGE                  | Reads as a shy 'kid' dragon, same emotional age-bracket as Princess — a peer, not an adult                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| BUILD                | Stocky, round-bellied, short thick legs and tail, small folded wings that look almost too small for his body (reinforcing his fear of flying)                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| PROPORTIONS          | Head is approx. 40% of body length, big round snout, small rounded spine-spikes running from head to tail tip                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| FACE                 | Broad rounded snout, soft brow ridges (no sharp angles), consistently reads as gentle/timid rather than fierce                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| EYES                 | Large round eyes, Bright Green iris, same double-catchlight rule as all characters, reads extra-wide/worried by default due to his shy personality                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| NOSE                 | Two small nostril dots on the snout, sage-coloured with a soft subsurface glow matching the belly plates                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| MANE AND TAIL        | N/A — no hair or mane                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| MANE LENGTH          | N/A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| HOW THE MANE IS WORN | N/A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| NOTABLE FEATURES     | Smooth, glossy, shallow scale texture (brushed-satin look, not leathery); scale texture is medium detail, never craggy; wings are small, membrane semi-translucent, folded tight against his back by default; a single row of soft amber-orange back-spines from neck to tail tip; two small curved tan horns on the head above the eyes. |

|                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|----------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| COAT           | Body scales: Teal base with Deep Teal core-shadow shading; underbelly and jaw: Sage; wing membrane and dorsal spines: Amber-Orange, semi-translucent at wing edges with light passing through when backlit Scale texture reads as small soft rounded scales with gentle highlights — visible but never craggy or leathery. |
| ACCESSORIES    | N/A (no clothing) — see skin_or_fur for full colour breakdown                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| CLOTHING       | None                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| PROPS          | None carried; interacts physically with the crystal in the cave climax                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| HOME           | Moss's Den (see settings) — a small burrow-cave at the roots of a fallen log in the Rainbow Forest                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| MOVEMENT       | Default: low waddling walk, wings pinned tightly to back, tail dragging slightly — body language reads reluctant/hesitant. Flying (spread 14 onward): wings snap open fully, body lifts with visible effort/wobble at first, then confident soaring by spread 15.                                                          |
| SITTING        | Sits low to the ground on haunches, tail curled around his front feet, wings still folded flat even seated                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| HOLDING THINGS | Uses front claws to grip/push large objects (the crystal); does not carry small props                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| EXPRESSIONS    | Default: worried wide eyes, small downturned mouth, wings clamped tight. Fearful (asked to fly): eyes darting, body leaning backward/away. Triumphant (first flight): eyes bright, wide open joyful mouth, wings fully spread.                                                                                             |
| NEVER          | Never drawn with leathery/craggy scale texture (must stay smooth satin), never shown flying with stiff/rigid wings — always some wing-membrane flex and translucency when lit from behind                                                                                                                                  |

Pose sheet

front, standing, looking at the camera

side profile, standing

three-quarter view from the left, standing

happy, bright eyes

from behind, walking away

sad, ears down, eyes lowered

scared, wide eyes

surprised, mouth a small o

walking, mid-step

sleepy, eyes half closed, calm

running, all four legs off the ground

sitting, resting

lying down, head on the ground

head lowered to the ground, sniffing or picking something up

looking back over the shoulder

The storyteller

David - American Narrator

warm, gentle, caring, unhurried Lars 2026-08-31: the storyteller is NEVER dramatic.
Warm, sweet and caring — especially where the story is sad. The sadness is in the words; he carries the child through it, he does not perform it at them. (Interim wording until Lars picks A/B/C from Storyteller_Warm_Registers.mp3.)

OBJECTS

Objects of the world

One approved picture per object and per state. A shot names the state it shows.

White stone

Canonical

Glitter bell

Canonical
a proper bell shape with a flared rim

On the ribbon

Lying in grass

In a foal mouth

Spring opening

Canonical

Rope bridge

Canonical

Fallen branch

Canonical

the break end splintered and torn (never sawn or cut clean)

Hollow log

Empty

Moss peeking out

Princess bell

Canonical

a proper bell shape with a flared rim

Bells together

Canonical

Glitter's bell (plum-size) and Princess's bell (cherry-size) side by side — the size chart

The atlas

Every place is one approved plate, drawn in the same palette and light, reused for every shot set there.

Rope bridge

A plain rope-and-plank footbridge across a green gorge in Rainbow Forest. Two straight thick rope handrails at chest height run the whole length; short vertical rope ties every few planks join the handrails down to the d

Moonwater spring

A round green clearing in Rainbow Forest where a clear spring fills a shallow pool of pale flat stones. Soft grass and small flowers run to the water's edge, tall leafy trees stand back around the rim, and a low white cl

Forest path dust

Forest-path-dust follows a dry creek bed cutting through the woods, its grey stones and damp moss marking where water once ran. Flowering vines tangle along the path's edge, with a fallen branch resting across them. A du

Forest path morning

Forest-path-morning is a soft dirt trail winding beneath towering rainbow-hued flowers and thick flowering vines, their giant petals arching overhead like canopies. Dew clings to leaves and blossoms, catching early light

Forest path quiet

A dry dirt path winds through open forest, packed pale earth studded with small stones. Tall trees rise on either side, their canopies loose enough to let soft grey-gold light filter down. Oversized flowers and low under

Path home dusk

Path-home-dusk winds through Rainbow Forest as a dusty trail scattered with smooth white stones, bordered by tall trees and soft undergrowth. The path dips near a fallen log and opens toward a quiet spring at its end. Ro

Spring dry

A dry creek bed in the green clearing: smooth wet stones and mud where the creek used to run, only a thin trickle of water left between them, and BEHIND it the spring outlet — the same rocky bowl and stone spout as the s

Spring outlet

A pale white cliff rises above a stony channel where spring water once ran, now damp moss and bare stones drying in the light. At the cliff's foot lies a small low opening, barely tall as a round stone, no cave mouth or

Spring restored

Moonwater Spring lies in a wide clearing at the foot of a pale white cliff, its stone rising smooth and ancient above the trees. Smooth stones ring the pool's edge, worn soft by time. Grass grows thick and green around t

Inside the cave

Inside the mountain, in the dark rounded cave where the underground river runs: we look from INSIDE toward the cave's mouth, and the mouth is blocked from inside by the BACK of one large pale rounded stone wedged tight i

Rainbow valley

The whole Unicorn Universe from high above at sunrise: Rainbow Forest with its giant rainbow flowers in the foreground, the golden winding path across green meadows, the river with its stone bridge and waterfalls, the ra

Valley from above

the whole Unicorn Universe from high above at sunrise, Rainbow Forest in front, the golden path, the river and its bridge, the rainbow, the white castle on its hill, blue mountains behind

Castle hill

the white castle with rose-gold roofs on its green hill, a rainbow behind it, flags in a soft wind, the winding path climbing to its gate

Castle gate

the castle gate seen from the path, open, flowers along the wall, warm light inside

Meadow by the river

a wide green meadow with tall grass and wildflowers, the river shining beside it, the forest edge far behind

Forest edge

the edge of Rainbow Forest from the meadow, giant rainbow flowers between the first trees, a path going in

Deep forest

deep inside Rainbow Forest, tall trunks, shafts of light, moss, a cobbled path

Hollow log clearing

a small sunlit clearing with an old hollow log lying across it, mushrooms, tall grass

River and waterfall

the river bending past mossy rocks with a small waterfall, mist in the sun

Rope bridge valley

the rope bridge from a distance, high above the river gorge, trees on both sides

Moonwater spring wide

Moonwater Spring in its rocky bowl, the stone spout, the pool, ferns, seen from a little way off

Great tree door

the great tree with the round wooden door in its trunk, lanterns, roots like steps

Path home dusk wide

the golden path home at dusk, long shadows, the castle small and warm in the distance, first stars

Castle from the meadow

The white castle with rose-gold roofs seen from the meadow below at midday, its hill green, the winding golden path climbing to the gate, the rainbow faint behind, no characters

Castle courtyard

Inside the castle walls: a sunny cobbled courtyard with a small fountain, flower boxes at every window, a round tower, pennants in a soft wind, no characters

Castle great hall

The castle's great hall: tall arched windows full of daylight, a long carpet to a pair of gentle thrones woven with flowers, banners with a rainbow and a bell, warm and welcoming, no characters

Princess tower room

Princess's little round tower room: a bed of soft straw and cushions, a round window looking over the valley, a shelf of shells and feathers, morning light, no characters

Castle balcony dusk

Seen from a balcony OF the castle at dusk: the stone balustrade and a warm lit doorway in the foreground, and beyond it only the valley — Rainbow Forest darkening below, the river catching the last light, meadows, blue m

Cave entrance cliff

The entrance of the cave in the pale cliff: a tall dark crack in the white-grey rock at the foot of the mountain, moss and ferns around it, a thin trickle of water running out over stones into the clearing — the same pal

Sound and music

Bright storybook orchestra: hummable 8-note glockenspiel motif over pizzicato strings, soft flutes, warm ukulele, gentle sparkle; never dark, never epic. The motif opens every film and belongs to the brand.

The fixed sound arc of an episode

1. Score. additional moods/alternatives added as the library grows
2. Ending scene. Princess falls asleep while Glitter sings The Unicorn Lullaby (short sung version) — TO BE SHOT once lullaby take is chosen

The lullaby

MAJOR KEY ONLY — bright, warm, safe; never minor (Lars 2026-08-29)

['Sleep now... sleep now...', 'the forest holds you near.', 'Sleep now... sleep now...', 'your dreams are safe in here.', 'Goodnight, goodnight, little unicorn...', 'sleep tight.']

Fixed for every episode, never regenerated or re-scored: the show intro (the sung theme, the logo hop and blink), the episode outro (the lullaby tuck-in and the TigerWorks card), and the theme continuation that opens the story.